Position Overview:

The Chronic Disease Prevention (CDP) PHNs work to implement the Ontario Public Health Standards (OPHS) related to the Chronic Disease Prevention and Wellness requirement, including the topics of healthy eating, food security/insecurity, physical activity, sedentary behaviour, built environment, mental health promotion and sun safety. The CDP PHNs plan, implement and evaluate a variety of initiatives in collaboration with community partners to address the topics listed in the OPHS.

CDP PHNs work with a wide variety of stakeholders in the settings of communities, municipalities, schools and workplaces, as well as the general public. CDP PHNs use a comprehensive primary prevention approach. This includes using best practice information, community assessments, the Ottawa Charter and a variety of health promotion theories to assess current opportunities within the agency and community. This may include elements of policy development, community mobilization, community capacity building, creating supportive environments and advocacy.

See Public Health Nurse Position description for further details of the public health nurse role.
